Republican National Lawyers Association's Election Education Program

The Republican National Lawyers Association (“RNLA”) is an organization that educates lawyers on election law. Each year it holds election law seminars to educate lawyers about changes in the election laws and the cases interpreting and applying them. The RNLA is a continuing legal education provider and its seminars are accredited by the Bar Associations and/or Supreme Courts of various states. It also provides sessions on professional ethics as required by the continuing legal education rules of the Supreme Courts of many states. This year the RNLA has trained over 1,000 lawyers.

The RNLA is dedicated to educating lawyers on protecting each registered voter’s right to cast a ballot unencumbered by harassment or other obstruction, and preventing the influencing of election outcomes through unlawful activities. The role of the lawyer to promote ballot access to all qualified voters and to ensure reliability of the electoral process is emphasized. RNLA programs provide information to enable attorneys it trains to protect the rights of all voters, regardless of party affiliation.

The Republican National Lawyers Association is an independent nationwide organization supported primarily by the dues of its over 5,000 members. As the principal national organization of lawyers committed to the ideals of the Republican Party, the Association has a targeted set of missions: advancing professionalism; advancing open, fair, and honest elections; advancing career opportunities for its members; and advancing Republican ideals.
